

Stephanie A Miller, MD

Primary Care - Family Medicine

Dr. Miller provides care for patients' illnesses and injuries, as well as offering preventive health exams. She is committed to educating patients about their mental and physical health, helping them manage the medical system and become their own health advocates. Her clinical interests include complex care coordination, primary care, and patient safety.

She welcomes patients of minority groups, underserved individuals, those who speak English as a second language, and women and children, including new mothers.

Dr. Miller received a medical degree from Renaissance School of Medicine (formerly Stony Brook University School of Medicine) in Stony Brook, New York. She completed a residency at Forbes Family Medicine in Monroeville, Pennsylvania. She speaks English and Spanish.
